

BEING ONE IN LOVE

JOHN 17:20–26

---

Being Together

“Father, I desire that those also, whom you have given me, may be with me where I am, to see my glory.”

John 17:24a

“To err is human; to forgive, divine.”* Perhaps “to rejoice is both” would be an appropriate addition. We believe that Jesus is fully human and fully divine, and through this verse, Jesus subtly acknowledges both. People love to celebrate, gathering in joy for births, baptisms, graduations, weddings, holidays, and so on. Food is even used for an excuse to have fun, like on National Ice Cream Day.

Jesus asks that those who believe will be with him to see his glory, his oneness with God. He desires that his followers be with him to witness and celebrate divine goodness and love. How human it is to request to be with whom one loves to celebrate that which is good. How divine it is to ask that the fallible beings who we are be present in the indescribable nature of the Son of God.

God of glory, remind us to celebrate your goodness with you and one another. Amen.

BEING ONE IN LOVE

ACTS 1:1–11

---

Hold, Please!

While staying with them, he ordered them not to leave Jerusalem but to wait there for the promise of the Father.

Acts 1:4

During technical rehearsals for theatrical productions, “Hold, please!” is called out, and the actors freeze in their positions. Adjustments and corrections to costumes, lighting, or set changes can be made before the rehearsal continues. These moments of holding in place are important. Without them, mistakes and difficulties can be overlooked or made worse, and the final production ends up being less than desired.

Jesus tells the disciples to “Hold, please! Stay where you are! Something is going to happen here.” Like us, the disciples probably desired to keep going. Waiting patiently is not a specialty of most people. We want to know what’s next now, even when trying to discern God’s call. Yet God’s “Hold, please!” had a purpose then, as it does now.

God of infinite wisdom and time, help us to breathe and listen when you call to us to hold in place, waiting with hope for the fulfillment of your promises. Amen.

Knowing Names

“I made your name known to them, and I will make it known.”

John 17:26a

Having people know my name well enough to accurately pronounce it has been a challenge for most of my life. My name is Ginny as in Virginia, not Jenny as in Jennifer; after getting married, I learned to tell people that Shanda rhymes with Honda. Getting the pronunciation right signaled to me a person’s spark of interest and care in knowing me.

Truly knowing another’s name means that that person understands what is behind the name: the character, the qualities, the whole of the person. When Jesus states that he made God’s name known and will continue to do so, that knowing went and goes beyond God’s title or name. Followers knew and will know who God was and is through Jesus, as well as what being in relationship with God meant and means.

God who knows our names, you became fully human through your Son, our Savior, so that we might know you. May we each day grow to know your name more fully. Amen.

Loving Oneness

*“So that the love with which you have loved me
may be in them and I in them.”*

John 17:26b

In closing his intercessory prayer, Jesus names an intention or purpose for knowing the Father—the same love shared with, in, and through Jesus by God is to be within the believers. This knowing of God is and leads to agape, unconditional love. Praying on behalf of Christ’s followers, Jesus desires a union that is infused with God’s boundless love. This desire for unity with and through Jesus and with one another flows from this love, which has no height, breadth, or depth to it.

Such a gift to us is this loving oneness is! How we embody and live out this loving togetherness reveals to the world in whom we believe and in whose communion we share a part. As followers of Jesus, the ways in which we pray, listen, and live together in relationship reflects our knowing of God’s name.

Loving God, help us each day to draw close to you through your Son, our Savior. Amen.

GOD'S PROVISION FOR DAILY NEEDS

1 KINGS 19:1–4 (5–7), 8–15A

Food from an Angel

*Suddenly an angel touched him and said to him,
“Get up and eat.”*

1 Kings 19:5b

Elijah is afraid for his life because he has played a role in the death of evil Queen Jezebel's favorite prophets. He flees into the wilderness and asks God to take his life. Elijah is exhausted and depressed after the tumultuous events, so he lies down under a tree and falls asleep. When he wakes, an angel offers him food.

The contrast between the high drama Elijah has experienced and the simple offer of food illustrates God's provision in daily life. Even when we experience a day of overwhelming challenges, perhaps even trauma, God cares about us and meets our basic needs. Sometimes we are so absorbed in facing the pressing demands that we can't see God's provision. When we pay attention, we will notice people and circumstances that show God's care for us.

*Provider God, help us to notice the ways you meet our practical, everyday needs even when the events of our lives seem overwhelming, traumatic, or frightening.
Amen.*

THE SPIRIT AMONG THEM
ACTS 2:1–4

Language Connects

All of them were filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other languages, as the Spirit gave them ability.

Acts 2:4

Language is a pathway that leads toward connection and a sense of belonging. A child's first words strengthen the bonds of their relationships with those who nurture and love them. Being among people who speak unfamiliar languages can be disorienting and isolating. However, discovering another who understands the same language or dialect can bring relief and forge bonds.

To suddenly speak new languages must have caused momentary bewilderment among those filled with the Holy Spirit. Yet the warmth of the tongues of fire could have also brought reassurance, possibility, and purpose as these Spirit-filled gifts emerged. The followers did not scatter. The Spirit resting on and filling them inspired them to speak and bear witness to God's deeds of power in languages that allowed others to receive the Spirit's message.

*Holy Spirit, open us and cultivate in us a readiness to receive and welcome the gifts that you bestow on us.
Amen.*

ACTS 2:5–13

Language Matters

Now there were devout Jews from every people under heaven living in Jerusalem. And at this sound the crowd gathered and was bewildered, because each one heard them speaking in the native language of each.

Acts 2:5–6

“They’re speaking my language” infers that another person holds similar perspectives or attitudes as the listener. Usually, the hearer positively receives the statement, but sometimes the initial reaction is one of bewilderment. Maybe the listener perceives the speaker to have a different background from their own. So how could the two possibly think similarly?

The crowd’s reaction was not surprising. It must have been a shock for them to hear their native languages being spoken by people who previously spoke only a single language. Today, it is not uncommon to meet people from different walks of life who are multilingual, even as the quick learning of second and third languages can be challenging. Like the Holy Spirit’s dramatic arrival, the Spirit’s imparting of gifts can astound both hearers and witnesses toward God’s end.

Holy bearer of gifts, give us patience when you pour out your gifts with generosity. Amen.

Responding to the Unexpected

All were amazed and perplexed, saying to one another, “What does this mean?” But others sneered and said, “They are filled with new wine.”

Acts 2:12–13

People are gloriously diverse in language, culture, physicality, attitudes, and beliefs, including the ways in which we experience and process ordinary and extraordinary events. How do we respond to someone taking a few new steps, whether a toddler, youth, rehab patient, older person, or ourselves? Do we rejoice, analyze, or take no notice? When witnessing something that is without obvious explanation, do we seek to understand, sit in awe, or dismiss it? Are our perspectives like the amazed and perplexed in Acts who sought meaning in the unexpected, or are they more like those who sneered at the events as distastefully mundane? How do we respond to experiencing “God’s deeds of power” (v. 11)? Where is the Holy Spirit today igniting sparks of transformational connection among us and those around us? What will be our reply?

*Holy Spirit, enlighten us so that we may see and embrace the wondrous works of God each day.
Amen.*

ACTS 2:14–21

For All

*“In the last days it will be, God declares,
that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh,
and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy,
and your young men shall see visions,
and your old men shall dream dreams.*

Acts 2:17

The prophet Joel’s pronouncement that the Spirit shall be poured out “upon all flesh” was socially upending in his time and remained as such when Peter proclaimed it to his listeners. The spiritual gifts to be given to this community of believers would not be set aside for a select few but would be given to all, no matter their station in life. Gifts of discernment, forthtelling, and visioning will be spread throughout the followers, reaffirming the Holy Spirit’s gift of many languages among the disciples. Diversity of language and people, which scattered humanity at the Tower of Babel, now builds inclusion and connection through the movement of the Spirit.

Spirit of God, inspire us to celebrate and nurture the variety of gifts that you give us to connect with you and all your children. Amen.

We Are Family!

When we cry, “Abba! Father!” it is that very Spirit bearing witness with our spirit that we are children of God, and if children, then heirs.

Romans 8:15b–17a

Growing up in the middle of a multifamily farm gave me a distinct meaning of family. Having extended family nearby taught me about the joys and challenges of being with people who were very similar and yet very different from me. Family gatherings brought fun and laughter. However, loss of livestock or crops created financial worries. Amid these concerns, a reassurance was also present. We had each other to lean on.

What joy and comfort must have been felt by Paul’s listeners, who were not people of means, to hear of this promise of family and inheritance. Their cries of pain and for help would be opportunities for the Spirit to remind them that they were children of God. Their fears of insecurity and bondage were eased. The Spirit-led followers would inherit God’s abundance.

Abba, Father, through your Spirit may we remember that we are yours. Amen.

The Gift of Presence

“And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Advocate, to be with you forever.”

John 14:16

During times of great emotion, having another person present can help us to acknowledge the significance of the moment and the importance of those who are living in that moment. Having someone by one's side during a crisis sparks a hope that getting through the difficulty is possible. When we are without the needed energy to speak for ourselves, hearing a friend speak up in our stead can provide us with a moment to breathe. Knowing that someone stands with you can kindle your courage to take on a right but unpopular action.

Jesus reassures the disciples, as he does us, that his transition from this physical world to the heavenly realm does not mean that he is abandoning them. Jesus will request of God the Father to send another who will speak and act on their and our behalf for all time. The Comforter will be forever abiding with those who know Jesus.

Holy Advocate and Comforter, thank you for your presence, which guides and sustains us. Amen.

ACTS 2:1–4

What an Entrance!

When the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in one place. And suddenly from heaven there came a sound like the rush of a violent wind, and it filled the entire house where they were sitting.

Acts 2:1–2

Often when we are waiting for something to occur or for someone to arrive, we prefer not to be alone, especially during times of uncertainty. The disciples were together because Jesus instructed them to gather, and probably because gathering helped them with the anxiety that accompanies waiting. Picturing this scene, one sees them quietly huddled, pacing, or fidgeting as they wait. Then the Holy Spirit, about whom they were told, makes a grand entrance, rushing in like a violent wind!

We, too, wait for the Spirit's guidance and inspiration, but we frequently find ourselves as startled as we imagine the disciples were. The Holy Spirit moves and engages according to God's plan; we wait and listen.

Holy Spirit, give us attentive patience as we wait for your spirit to blow through us, moving us to faithful action. Amen.
